Noah's Voyage (I Can Read! / Adventure Bible)

Synopsis

When God asks a good man named Noah to build an ark and put his family and two of every animal on it, Noah says, "Yes!" Will Noah get the job done before the big rains come to cover the earth? This is a Level Two I Can Read! book, which means it's perfect for children learning to sound out words and sentences. It aligns with guided reading level J and will be of interest to children Pre-K to 4th grade.

Bought as a birthday present for my (now) 7 year old. He loved it! Still re-reading it again and again 5 months later.

Title: Noah's Voyage
Illustrator: David Miles
Publisher: Zonderkidz
ISBN:

978-0-310-74683-6
"There is going to be a flood. Build an ark. Then two of every creature, one male and one female, will come. Put them on the ark. Then wait," God instructs Noah in the retold Bible story of Zonderkidz's children's book, Noah's Voyage. Part of the "I Can Read!" Adventure Bible series, this numbered thirty-two-page paperback targets children four to eight years old interested in knowing more about the Biblical story of Noah and the ark. Using the New International Version of the Bible, the story is taken from the Old Testament. Containing the concepts of obeying and trusting God, its level is for developing readers. After a book-ownership page and message to parents regarding the "I Can Read!" series, illustrator Miles' expressive and detailed designs fill both sides of the opened pages, leaving blank backgrounds for black wording in an easy-to-read font. The end of the book includes sections titled "People of the Bible" and "Did You Know." There is also an advertisement for three other books in the Adventure Bible Family series. Following well-known Biblical events, this charming and engaging rendition is of God telling Noah He loves him and asks the six-hundred-year-old man to build an ark since the people did not follow God's rules. Noah and his three sons work hard and build the massive boat. God brings the animals in pairs to the ark, and they are assembled on the top, middle, and bottom floors of the huge ship. After God closes the window, the floodwaters appear, and it rains for forty days and forty nights, covering all the land. Noah, his family, and the animals are safe. After one hundred and fifty days, the water began to recede. Noah sent several birds free to fly, making sure the land had reappeared. In the end, Noah built an altar to God and thanked Him for keeping them safe. God put a rainbow in the sky, promising never to flood the earth again. Although the book does not go into detail of the tragic story not in the ark dying in the rising waters, it is Biblically sound. The story offers children a glimpse at how powerful and loving the Creator of the universe was to save Noah and his family. Zonderkidz' Adventure Bible I Can Read series is based on the Adventure Bible and illustrated by David Miles. "Noah's Voyage" tells the story of Noah. I was glad that it told how God brought the animals to the ark since that is what it says in the Bible. One thing I wondered about, though, was that it said that after the animals and Noah and his family were on the ark "God closed the window tight". In the Bible, it mentions that God closed the door. I like having books that I can let my children read and know that it is teaching truth. It is a Level 2 reader which stands for "Reading with Help-high interest stories for developing readers". The illustrations were beautiful and reminded me of colored pencil pictures. Many of the pages are completely covered with color making the book visually appealing. There was one picture I didn't like as it shows that suddenly the whole side of the ark is covered in windows and the animals have their heads sticking out. This is more the modern rendition of the ark and I didn't like seeing it in the book that followed the Bible otherwise. At the end of the book is a "People in Bible Times" section that tells a little bit more about Noah and a "Did You Know?" section that tells about the size of the ark. I would recommend this book for those with young children in their lives. I received a free copy of this book from Zonderkidz' zblogsquad in exchange for my honest review. All opinions are my own.

The story of Noah's Ark is a story that most children learn growing up. This book in the "I Can Read" series tells the story of Noah in an easy way that newer readers can read for themselves. Even though my daughter is not reading yet, she still fully enjoyed this book. David Miles does a wonderful job with the illustrations in the book, and because it's written for newer readers it was easy for her to understand even at her young age. It's a book I'm sure she'll be pulling off the shelf for me to read over and over again. One day in the future she'll be reading it to me. This book is perfect for the child that is learning to read, it's not a beginner book, but a book for what they call developing readers in the "I Can Read" series. I received this book free from the publisher through the BookLook Bloggers book review bloggers program. I was not required to write a positive review. The opinions I have expressed are my own. Since Noah's story is familiar to most children, they'll be eager to look at the animals that board the ark. I especially liked the illustrations that showed the cross-section of the ark. Be aware that the parent must really be involved in the explanation of this book; my biggest concern is that the first few pages are confusing and ambiguous. Page one shows Noah's anxiety about the ark, which is later explained when God says that he regrets making humans. Children will understandably be concerned about this situation. Noah's Voyage is a good choice for developing readers. The longer sentences can be decoded with help, and the repetition of age-appropriate words helps to develop sight word recognition. I received this book to review; opinions shared are mine.
