Reopening Old Wounds: The Conclusion Of The Self Inflicted Trilogy

Synopsis

Life has been good for the last four years. Erik is in prison. Liam was back on his feet before he married Aurora and adopted Gavin. Aislynn is happy with Trent, even though their relationship is long distance. Maybe the nightmare is over. Aurora learns she is pregnant. She and Liam are thrilled, until they discover that damage caused by Erik all those years ago could have disastrous affects on the baby and Aurora. Will she continue the pregnancy? How will everything turn out? Gabe has gone back to his old lifestyle of refusing to have a real relationship. He's not exactly happy, but he is content until Rachel makes a sudden reappearance with a blonde-haired, green-eyed, three year old son. Is he Gabe's? Trent is happy. He has been clean for four years. He is off probation and convinces his brother to move to Wisconsin to be closer to Aislynn. How is their relationship going? Is he strong enough to avoid the temptations in his new hometown? Erik has been in prison for four years. He has spent much of that time plotting ways to get back what he lost: his wife and child. His release date approaches and he sets out determined to get what's his. Does he go after Rory and Gavin? As the conclusion to the Self Inflicted Trilogy, Reopening Old Wounds will leave you turning pages so fast your head will spin! Find out what happens to the characters you have come to know so well over the series.

Customer Reviews

Ok this had to be by far my favorite one yet. I cried and laughed and yelled ask through this book! It is full of twists and turns and so many emotions I couldn't put it down! Especially with what Erik had up his sleeve. Totally recommend this to EVERYONE!
